The Treaty is passed, though I know of no Senatowho approves of it. It is, therefore, ratified, though not approved by the Senate. The Administration folks were in great constenation for fear of its rejection. It was negotiated by a recalled and disgraced agent: it was written by British hands, on British paper, by a British pen. Was this the reason of Pota's fear of its rejection, while he blosters about no foreign interference on this continent I. There was a large reception at the White House on Friday evening. When the news of the ratification was brought in, Mr. Pota almost fainted: at all events, he left the company for some time, but returned quite composed. It is supposed that the Treaty saratified protects the celebrated McNamara grant. The free exercise of all religious opinions is guaranteed.

It is rather too bad to have British agents so work upon the fears of Mr. Pota that he compels his own party, even against their loud expostulation. N J BOYD. EDWARD COLLAN.

It is believed the President will appoint but one Commissioner, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to adjust finally the terms of Peace with Mexico, on the hasts of Mr. Trist's Trasty as amended by the Senate. He will, it is rumored, esteed him from Massachusetts, to counterbalance Mr. Wester's opposition to the Treaty, and it will, in all probability, be the son of Hon. Edward Everett, the late Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britisin. The choice would certainly be a good one, and an additional guaranty that the Treaty will be ratified by the Mexican Courses. Washington Parado Ground Ald Purser moved that a memorial be sent to the Senate against the passage of a bill to text the Gity $25,000 in order to place as from railing round Washington Parade Ground, because it is not a measure of general public interact. Debates ensued, and the motion was tabled.

Fouriers Distinction—All, Purser moved, in substance, that whereas the vast and increasing number of immigrant passengers arriving at this port, and the sickness and mortality that have recently prevailed among them demands immediate attention, with a view to the adoption of such laws as may secure to Immigrants on their passage from Europe, more perfect venication, enough of wholesman food, and medical aid when sick, the want of which (as is stated) has been fatal to several headreds of passengers, and Congress legislation is essential. Recoived, That the Committee on Charity and Alms be directed to prepare a memorial to Gongress, and to take measures to scentre the public sefery. Adopted.
